Random Name and Fake Identity Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ)

This document contains questions and answers that address most popular doubts and issues about random names and fake identity.

What's a random name generator?

A random name generator, or more correctly a fake identity generator, creates an virtual character from randomly generated data.

What is a fake identity?

A fake identity a set of random generated personal information (name, address, documents, life and personality details) that doesn't not correspond to an actual person, living or ever existed.

How you can generate a new identity?

You can simply use Businer's fake id random name generator to get a new identity instantly.

What qualifies as an identity theft?

An identity theft is when you steal personal information of someone else (like name, address, SSN, passport, state ID, driver's license, or credit card number) to impersonate him or her. A generated identity does not qualify as identity theft, because it doesn't correspond to an actual person.

Can you steal a dead person's identity?

Yes, it's possible (but not legal) to use the name and the documents that a deceased person used when he or she was alive. Note that after death documents are invalid.

Is it illegal to use fake name generator?

No, if you use it for your games or fun stuff. It's mostly likely illegal if you use the generated identity to pretend to be someone else.

What are the risks of using a fake identity?

It mostly depends from what you do with the fake identity and the laws you break. While using a random generated name does not constitute an identity theft, it may qualify as a fraud if you use the fake identity to impersonate someone who's not actually you, or otherwise trick people in believing you are someone else.
